Chancellor Brown Tells

Chancellor Brown following his report of his stewardship for last year to the council of the university her made a like report to the student body. As he could not address the entire group of 15,000 students the presidents of all the student organizations were invited to attend the meeting.

In the course of his report Chancellor Brown declared that a new era had opened for the university through the great improvement in the financial situation and the addition of many new facilities to their equipment. He urged the students to co-operate with the augrent in the student of most one of the latter, to the end that an even greater university might be built up.

Another innovation in the university is the use of motion pictures in one of the courses of study for the entire presentation of the subject matter. This is being done in the Department of Management in the School of Commerce. The only other source of information in the class is the supplementary matter presented during the showing of the pictures by the lecturer, Nicholas Thiel Ficker.

Among the industries studied in this course are those of petroleum, cut class salt steal potterwind cut.
